

PURESTONE® SLATE PAVING

For more information see page 11 of the main brochure.

Although Purestone Slate paving has clean cut edges, we do not recommend butt jointing. paving joints should be 10-15mm wide and fully pointed. Always lay on a full bed of mortar. Being a dense material, Purestone Slate paving does not readily "take up" water and it is therefore advisable to use a PVA admix to the bedding mortar to create the necessary "key" or adhesion. • Number per m<sup>2</sup> includes the recommended pointing gap i.e. 10-15mm. • The thickness of all Purestone Slate paving will vary from a nominal 18-23mm and can be taken up in the bedding material.
